Dear friends,

We are excited to announce our upcoming webinar on "From Transactional to Transformational: The Next Level of Integration of Social Determinants of Health.”

Taking place on Tuesday, October 1st, this webinar will feature a panel discussion on the importance of integrating social determinants of health into healthcare systems and the lessons learned from leaders in the field.

The webinar will be presented by Dave and Berenice, who have years of experience in this field. They will share insights on how to tackle structural determinants of health and address social needs in concrete ways.

With so many emerging initiatives and projects to address social determinants of health, it is crucial to have a blueprint to guide our efforts. This webinar will provide you with a scalable blueprint and a roadmap to achieving your goals.

In our webinar, we will discuss the key drivers of health inequality and how to navigate upstream better — improving social drivers of health at all levels of scale. We will also provide concrete examples of ways institutions are adding systems and structural determinants to their approach to healthcare.

Join us on October 1st to learn more about this important topic and how you can make a difference in your community. You can register for the webinar here.

Best regards,

[Signature]

[HealthBegins]

PS: Don't forget to check out our recordable webinars page! You can find valuable ideas and insights from Dave and Berenice in the freely available recordings of all of our past webinars.